

People book hotels in Vietnam due to a variety of reasons. Some book the required number of rooms in order to spend family holidays, some to arrange birthday parties and receptions, while others for official meetings. A lot of people when scheduling their luxury holidays will evaluate the suitability of a hotel by judging the offered services and this is surely a good approach. Aspects such as range of dining, assorted bars, gym, spa and facilities like internet access, plasma TV, and DVD can assist to make a stay not only happy, but luxuriant. Luxurious hotels offer all or most of these services, but what keeps them apart from more conventional top-end accommodations is the style and uniqueness of their management. This uniqueness will gratify travelers who desire their holidays to be tailor made to their own likings.

Although, it is difficult to select amongst the most luxurious hotels in the world since the contemporary era has immensely progressed with regard to luxury and service, I have penned down two of the most luxurious hotels with their elaborated details. The first one that I have taken the initiative to recommend for a luxury holiday is Intercontinental, located at Da Nang, Vietnam. It is surreptitiously possessed and managed by the enchanting Intercontinental family. The hotel is a private "Boutique" style asset that was constructed in the 19th century as a private holiday home.

All the rooms of this hotel are equipped with AM/FM alarm clocks, sofa sleepers, coffee makers and air conditioners. Some rooms even contain Jacuzzi tubs besides a large TV and furnishings. The hotel also contains a pool, shuttle service to the major popular parks, restaurants, business center and it also offers exercise facilities as well as Wi-Fi, in-room washer and dryers.
